

22 April 2010

“No, not that left, the other left,” is a statement that is made often with dyslexics. More and more often, I have found myself helping parents of children or adult members that are dealing with dyslexia. Through a series of God ordained appointments, it appears that He is leading me to draft an International Project Request for a Barton site license. Barton is one of a number of Orton Gillingham methods for teaching dyslexics to read. Since writing projects is a brand new endeavor for me, I would really appreciate your prayers. This project would allow our families to use this program worldwide.

Several years ago Wycliffe did a survey to better understand the financial needs of its members. The results of that study found that a number of families living in the U.S. had an unrealistically low monthly ministry budget. We were among that group, and as of May 1, we will have a large increase in our needed income. This increase occurred even after we took a significant voluntary reduction. We know that God is our supply as He has been for these 34 years. Please join with us in praying for God’s provision.

Thank you for your faithfulness to us and Bible translation through your prayers and finances. You are reaching literally around the world with your partnership. We know that we are a blessed people.

Blessings from the Father to you,

Dennis and Patti