

A 2005 field test of the MM scriptures

May 25, 2010

Have you ever thought that you were too bad or evil to be a part of the vast crowd from every tribe and language that will stand before the throne of God?

In a recent MM field test of Revelations 7, one of the respondents said that he thought the people from his language group were bad, and not one of them had a chance of being there. After a long discussion about how Jesus can make anyone a clean and pure person before God, this group, too chose to receive Jesus as their Lord and Savior.

Dennis is on a eleven day to Moody Aviation in Spokane for an advisory board meeting, graduation, and to interaction with students. In our lunchtime telephone conversation, he said he has had long and meaningful conversations with students that are pursuing missionary service. These young people will be able to use the aviation skills they are learning to reach into remote locations around the world.

Thank you for your prayers for the writing of the Barton Project for Dyslexic Students. The project is now an official JAARS project and will soon be listed on the JAARS website. www.jaars.org

Thank you for partnering with us to put God's Word into the heart language of people around the world. Your faithful prayers and financial support make it possible to help families with educational needs and train current and new members to be the superior aviators. Together, we are working to get God's Word to groups like the MM. We want them to know that they too can be part of the vast crowd before the throne.

Partnering together,

Dennis & Patti
